

Answers for condo questions

EDMONTON JOURNAL APRIL 10, 2010

Living in a condominium can be a fabulous experience.

No more snow-shovelling, lawn mowing or dusty spring cleanup in the yard.

But condo life does have its worries, and those often involve issues with neighbours or the condo board.

What are your rights? How do you resolve disputes? Do you find answers online? Call in a lawyer?

As more and more Journal readers make the move from houses into condos, they need information to adapt to this new urban lifestyle. Starting April 24 in the Condos section, readers will be able to benefit from the expertise of an Edmonton lawyer. Robert Noce will begin writing a monthly column to answer your questions about the legalities of condo life.

E-mail your questions for Robert Noce to condos@thejournal.canwest.com. Answers will be featured in forthcoming columns.
